

Plaque with Lenin's Bas-Relief Portrait, circa 1970s-80s.

In aluminum or Silumin alloy with bronze finish; measures 155 mm in diameter (approx. 6") and about 1.1" thick at its highest points. The portrait is in very high 3-d profile, rising about 1/2" above the flat base. On the reverse, there is a provision for a nail or hook to hang it on the wall and two additional small, shallow drilled holes that may indicate that the plaque was once attached to a larger propaganda display.

The plaque is in very good to excellent condition, free of significant wear or damage. There are a few minor oxidation spots to the finish and also several small dings at the lower edge that are barely noticeable.

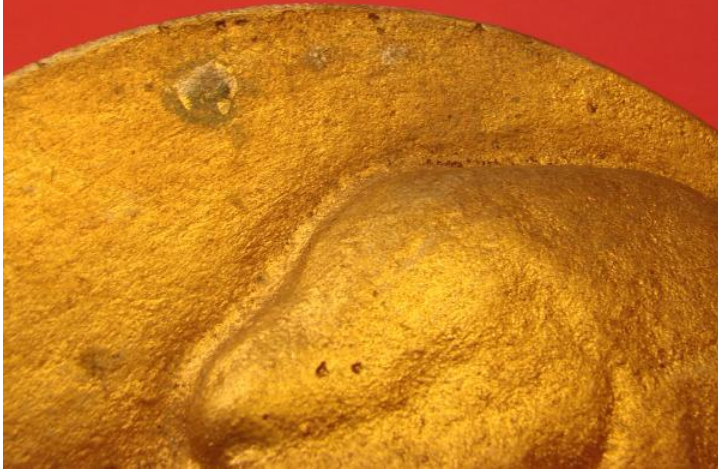

Please note: The pen in the last photo is there for size reference.
