

Small hand-painted metal tray, in traditional Russian folk-art style, 1989.

Measures 180 mm (approx. 7") across. Hand-painted in bright colors over black background in the style of traditional folk-art miniature painting, similar to Palekh, Khokhloma, Mstera and many others. Made at the Zhostovo Decorative Painting Factory in Mytishchi (suburb of Moscow). The maker's mark and the 1989 price of 83 kopeks are stamped on the bottom. The paper inventory tag identifies the manufacturer and all the item-related details. The date of manufacture is on the back of the tag.

In brand-new condition. The tray has never been used and did not sustain even the slightest shelf-wear in storage.

We have several such trays in stock. The artwork on each is similar but not one of them is exactly identical to another although all of them are equally beautiful.

Please note that the teaspoon in our photo is for size reference only.
