Badge in Commemoration of the 50th Anniversary of the Central School of Music, Moscow, 1982.

Brass, enamels, measuring 22 mm in height, 15 mm in width, with a 31mm-long vertical pin. The lettering against the red background reads "50 years to TsMSh" (ЦМШ being the Russian abbreviation for Central School of Music).

In excellent condition, no wear or damage visible to the naked eye.

The Moscow Central School of Music is a special school for musically gifted children with an eleven-year curriculum. It teaches musical subjects as well as the full curriculum of a standard public school. Founded in 1932 as the Children's Department of the Moscow Conservatoire, it was officially acknowledged as a separate educational institution in 1935 and was named the Central School of Music at the Moscow Conservatoire.
