

Record with Light Dance Music Performed by Two German Orchestras, late 1930s.

In shellac, 78 rpm, measures 10" across. Manufactured by the Leningrad Records Factory. Contains a foxtrot performed by Robert Gaden's orchestra and a tango played by the orchestra of Barnabas von Geczy, two famous German orchestras specializing in light classical and dance music, very popular in those alarming times.

In very good to excellent condition. The writing on the labels is clear and bright. Note that playback has not been tested as we do not have a record player but in the absence of significant scratches, nicks or any other damage, we are hopeful that playback will be problem-free.
